

Are you ready to work in school environments?

The Interprofessional Preparation Program helps Related Service Personnel be effective in a school system.

A 12-month program for graduate students in special education or allied health and interested in child healthcare, child development (birth-21 years), and disability across the lifespan.

The program integrates these topics into school settings and their respective disciplines through observations and engagement in actual school environments.

IPP will introduce you to adaptations required for today's educational landscape and prepare you for future work in school settings.

Apply now if you are a graduate student in Special Education or an Allied Health Profession and considering work with children in school environments.

Learn more and apply:
www.hdc.lsuhsu.edu/iprsp/

Related Service Personnel include the following professions working in schools:

- Speech-language pathology
- Audiology services
- Interpreting services
- Psychological services
- Physical therapy
- Occupational therapy
- Recreation, including therapeutic recreation
- Applied behavioral analysis
- Social work services
- Counseling services, including rehabilitation counseling
- Orientation and mobility services

The program is also for special education teachers seeking certification in:

- Hearing Impaired K-12
- Visual Impairments/Blind K-12
- Significant Disabilities 1-12

